

THE PHILADELPHIA CONVENTION.

MAY 25.

The time for the assembling of the Convention was noon on the 5th of June. A little after that time the Convention was called to order by ex-Senator C. H. Baldwin who nominated Hon. Morton McMichael as temporary chairman. Temporary secretaries were appointed, and a list of the States were made up, and a committee on Credentials; on Permanent Organization; on Resolutions and Rules; and when Mr. McMichael addressed the Convention, in a short speech which was very favorably received. Speeches were made by Logan, Morton, Orr, Gerrit Smith and by three colored delegates, Wm. H. Gray of Ark., Mr. Elliott of South Carolina, and Mr. Harris of North Carolina. Judge Thomas Settle of North Carolina was chosen permanent President. The day's proceedings include the permanent organization and leave the Convention ready for business tomorrow.

The Committee on Platform were in session until long after midnight. Their deliberations have been kept profound secret. They are to report to the general committee at nine o'clock on the 6th.

The colored delegates in the Virginia delegation have resolved to vote for Colfax.

SIXTY-EIGHT DAY.

Dispatches from Philadelphia on the 6th describe the convention as being harmonious and interesting. Whenever Grant's name is mentioned it is received with loud and unanimous cheering. The fight between Wilson and Colfax, for the Vice-Presidency, is extremely close. At 11:30 a.m. Shirley M. Colton, of Illinois, put Grant in nomination. The poll was called, and Grant was nominated, every vote being given for him, 552 to all. The Committee on Platform not appearing, it was moved to suspend the rules and proceed to the nomination for Vice-President. Morton McMichael, of Pennsylvania, nominated Henry Wilson of Massachusetts; Edward W. Thompson nominated Schuyler Colfax, of Indiana; Mr. Sevier, of Virginia, nominated John F. Lewis, of that State; a colored delegate from Texas nominated Gov. Ed. J. Davis; and Mr. Moore, of Tennessee, presented the claims and nominated Horace Maynard. At this point, General Hawley read the platform, as follows:

THE PLATFORM.

The Republican party of the United States, according to the National Convention of Philadelphia, on the 4th and 5th days of May, 1862, vindicates its right, appeals to its memory, and announces its position upon the question before the country.

The party avows its principles of independence, as associated with grand conceptions of the liberties of the times. It has appeared as a patriotic, independent, uncompromising, uncompromised, and uncompromisingly uncompromising party.

It originally planned to make a nation of friends and warmly welcomed all who were attached to the locality by obeying the laws and dealing fairly with their neighbors. It has steadily increased with a firm hand, resulting disorders, and now stands in the front ranks of the policy-making party.

The party's railroad and other industrial enterprises have been generally successful and successfully conducted.

The public lands have been freely given to settlers, unconditioned, and a full acknowledgment made of the services rendered to the country by those who secured them from European powers.

A uniform and well-organized system has been provided, combining, drawn down, the national credit sustained under the most extraordinary burdens, and new bonds sustained at home and abroad.

The party's revenue and expenditure, collected and honestly applied, despite enormous reductions of its expenses, has been reduced during General Grant's presidency at the rate of one hundred millions of dollars, leaving a great financial balance in the treasury, and a large sum available for the support of the war.

Memories of past suffering have been pacified, and honor and power on the nation have high respect throughout the world.

This glorious record of the past is the party's best pledge for the future, and the party's record of its services to the government to any party or combination of men composed chiefly of those who have resisted every step of this blessed progress.

A simple and exact equality in the enjoyment of all civil, social, and political rights should be established and solemnly maintained throughout the Union by efficient and appropriate state and federal legislation.

Neither the law nor its administration should admit of any discrimination, and hence the application of discriminatory regulations of the kind, which the party has been reduced during General Grant's presidency at the rate of one hundred millions of dollars, leaving a great financial balance in the treasury, and a large sum available for the support of the war.

The principle work this month in the established orchards is to thin the fruit and keep the trees free from insects. An orchard should be carefully plowed several times each season, and if any crops raised between the rows of trees, an extra quantity of manure should be applied, so that the growth of the trees will not be interfered with.

The warm weather of June brings an abundance of flowers and fruits. Care and labor are necessary to keep the ground in proper order, so that the growth of the plants is not checked. Constant cultivation and stirring of the soil is necessary for all crops, whether of the farm or garden, but this labor is abundantly repaid by the large crops of fruits and vegetables, which reward the careful gardener.

The crop of strawberries will be ready this month, and then will follow in rapid succession the other small fruits, so that there is a constant series of agreeable surprises in the ripening of some choice fruit or the flowering of a rare plant.

In making bread always use potatoes or rice corn-meal. I do not feel as though I were doing the correct thing if I only use flour. The corn-meal need not be made into mush; scald it first in the mixing pan before adding the flour, then eat in the usual manner.

The most perfect person cannot detect by the taste any corn in the bread, but there is an increased-sweetness, and keeps moist much longer.

Of course the best cornmeal must be used, not that rank chicken-feed.

A Dead Delusion.

The theory that human beings, whose strength has been exhausted by pain and sickness, can be restored by depilating medicines and water gruel, if not absolutely a dead delusion, is in the last agonies of dissolution. At length it is understood that strength cannot be purged into a delirious frame, though life may easily be purged out of it, and that it is about as wise to withhold a healthy stimulus from the weak, in the expectation that they will rally without it, as it would be to deprive a lamp of oil and expect it to burn the brighter for it.

The instance of uniform success which has attended the use of that wonderful combination of a pure stimulant with the finest medicinal herbs, known as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, has largely assisted in dispelling the absurd delusion. frantic attempts are made to revive it, but in vain. When the delirium that their strength is departing, and that unless invigorated they must utterly break down, it is natural to tender them feebble drops in the place of genuine restoratives. They may be imposed upon in this way once, but the impression cannot be repeated. They deserve to be refreshed, comforted, braced up, and shielded to be griped a second time.

Under the operation of the Bitters, on the other hand, all the processes necessary to physical restoration go on simultaneously. The system is stimulated and toned, the bowels regulated, the appetite cultivated, the nerves composed, and the condition of the blood improved at one and the same time by a single medicine. Common sense tells us that such a preparation must be invaluable.

An Institution.—A Chapter One, Cooking Stock is absolutely necessary for the health and liberty of all women, for it lightens their labors, preserves their health, cheers and soothes their temper, economizes their time and strength, and extends their leisure.

PERRY DAVIS' PAIN-KILLER.—Thirty years have elapsed since the introduction of Davis' Pain-Killer to the public, and yet at the present time it is more popular and commands a larger sale than ever before. Its popularity is not confined to this country alone; all over the world its beneficial effects in curing the ills that flesh is heir to are acknowledged and appreciated, and a Pain-Killer has never been equalled by any medicine in Europe or America. It is sold by all medicine dealers.

Saving Money.

The possession of a few dollars often makes all the difference between happiness and misery, and no man, especially with a family dependent upon him, can be truly independent unless he has a few dollars reserved for the time of need. While extreme carelessness as to the expenditure of money will make a rich man poor, a wise economy will almost as certainly make a poor man rich, or at least make him, to a considerable extent, independent of the caprices of employers and of the vicissitudes of life. Nothing is more important to the poor than the habit of saving something; for his little hoard will begin to grow at a rate which will surprise and gratify him. Every workingman ought to have an account in some savings bank, and should add to it every week during which he has full employment, even if the addition is but a dollar at a time. If he does this he will soon find the dollars growing into tens, and these tens into hundreds, and in a little while will be in possession of a sum which is constantly yielding an addition to his income, which secures him a reserve fund whenever he is needed, and which will enable him to do many things, which, without a little money, he would be powerless to do.

USEFUL AND SUGGESTIVE.

The Temperance Almanac for 1872 estimates the total liquor sales at retail in the United States for 1871 at $60,000,000, and there were 150,000 saloons.

June is a month for weeds, and only by constant cultivation can we keep the crops from them. Where the cultivation can be performed by horse-power, much trouble is done away with. During a dry season, if the soil is frequently stirred, good grass is done to the crops.

Thinning, though not generally practised among fruit-growers, ought to be more regarded, as the fruit from a tree thinned is much finer, and will easily bring a higher price than if the tree is allowed to ripen all that sets. After the fruit is fairly set, one third, to one half should be thinned out, and the sooner the better.

The principle work this month in the established orchards is to thin the fruit and keep the trees free from insects. An orchard should be carefully plowed several times each season, and if any crops raised between the rows of trees, an extra quantity of manure should be applied, so that the growth of the trees will not be interfered with.
